What is Ripple (XRP)?

Launched in 2012, XRP emerges as an open source cryptocurrency developed by Ripple that is used in Ripple products to facilitate quick conversion between different currencies. What distinguishes Ripple (XRP) and other cryptocurrencies is that it is owned by a single company and not run by a decentralised community.

As a blockchain-based digital payment network and protocol with its own cryptocurrency XRP, Ripple targets to serve as an intermediate mechanism of exchange between two currencies or networks. Compared with other traditional payment methods, Ripple (XRP) boasts many advantages, like incredibly fast transaction confirmations and settlement, very low fee, versatile exchange network, etc. By market capitalization, Ripple (XRP) ranks among the most valuable blockchain-based tokens.
